New York, January 27.—The violent sontortions in the price movements of stocks which have been characteristic of the week's market had another illustration to-day. Yesterday's sudden recovery was wiped out for the most part, and prices of some of the principal leading stocks were established at lower records than in the demoralization of Tuesday. The only news cited to account for the heavy selling was the French disaster by flood.

The more general opinion of the forces at work in the day's stock market was of an organized bear party, which took advantage of the dying down of demand at resterday's recovery prices to put out fresh short lines, and to offer prices down with great aggressiveness. Not much opposition was apparent to these operations, the market surfering from the entire absence, apparently, of any supporting measures. There was a great congestion of activity in the most highly speculative stocks in the list, all of them, however, of properties of first importance. The Harriman Pacifics were the especial target of attack and if met with no manifest opposition. Among the findustrials, United States Steel maintained its usual eminence, and Colorado Fuel was handled with special severity. The coppers got no benefit from the steps toward a merger.

Pennsylvania offered notable resistance to the day's weakness, and was prominent in the recovery. The approach of the dividend period had an proposation of the divide
